

Strategic ESG Analysis and Sustainability Disclosure Profile of CJ ENM (035760.KQ)

Company Identification and Strategic Business Architecture

The subject of this comprehensive analysis is CJ ENM Co., Ltd., a preeminent global lifestyle creator and South Korea’s leading entertainment and media conglomerate. Identified on the KOSDAQ market by the stock ticker 035760.KQ, the entity represents the consolidated media and commerce arm of the CJ Group.¹ The legal name, CJ ENM Co., Ltd., reflects its dual focus on "Entertainment" and "Merchandising" (Commerce), a structure formalized following a pivotal merger in 2018.³ The organization maintains its global headquarters at 66, Sangamsan-ro, Mapo-gu, Seoul, South Korea, positioning it at the heart of the Digital Media City district, which serves as the nexus for the country’s broadcasting and content production industries.¹

The primary business activity of CJ ENM is bifurcated into two distinct yet synergistic divisions. The Entertainment Division operates across the entire value chain of the media industry, including content planning, production, and distribution for television, film, and music.¹ This division manages iconic broadcast channels such as tvN, Mnet, and OCN, and oversees the rapid expansion of the over-the-top (OTT) streaming platform TVING.¹ Furthermore, it controls Studio Dragon, a globally recognized drama production subsidiary.¹ The Commerce Division, branded as CJ OnStyle, integrates television and mobile shopping platforms, leveraging data-driven "One Platform" strategies to deliver lifestyle products and brand experiences.⁸

CJ ENM is classified within the "Media and Entertainment" sector, specifically the "Movies & Entertainment" industry.⁹ Identification of this entity is verified through official exchange data from the Korea Exchange (KRX), financial data providers including Reuters and Bloomberg, and the company’s dedicated investor relations portal.¹ There is no significant ambiguity regarding the ticker 035760.KQ, as it uniquely identifies the listed entity of CJ ENM Co., Ltd. following the absorption of CJ E&M by CJ O Shopping in July 2018.³

ESG Report Timeline Analysis: 2014–2023

The trajectory of ESG reporting at CJ ENM during the 2014–2023 period reflects a broader transition within the South Korean corporate landscape from traditional Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) toward sophisticated, framework-aligned Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) management. This decade was marked by structural consolidation and the formalization of sustainability governance.

Pre-Merger Landscape and Early Disclosure (2014–2017)

During this phase, the current entity existed as two separate listed subsidiaries: CJ E&M and CJ O Shopping. Comprehensive, standalone sustainability reports for these specific entities were not standard practice; instead, their performance was primarily disclosed through the CJ Corporation (holding company) reports.¹²

In 2014, a significant structural milestone occurred when the game division of CJ E&M was spun off to become Netmarble (then CJ Netmarble), narrowing the entity's focus to broadcasting, film, and music.¹³ Between 2014 and 2016, sustainability activities were largely localized, focusing on content production ethics and community engagement.⁷ During 2017, internal groundwork for more robust disclosure began, as the CJ Group emphasized "Only One" management principles, which prioritized being the first, best, and different in all categories, including corporate citizenship.¹²

Merger and Governance Stabilization (2018–2020)

The merger in July 2018 fundamentally altered the reporting requirements for the entity. The consolidation of CJ O Shopping and CJ E&M aimed to create a financial buffer for high-risk content investments using the steady cash flows of the commerce business.³ However, this period also coincided with significant governance challenges.

In 2019, the Mnet "Produce 101" voting manipulation scandal emerged as a watershed moment for the company's governance and ethical management profile.¹⁵ The discovery that producers had rigged votes in exchange for financial favors from agencies led to criminal convictions and a severe decline in public trust.¹⁶ The company's response in late 2019 and throughout 2020 involved establishing a 30 billion won fund to support the K-pop ecosystem and implementing a third-party "observer system" for future voting-based programs.¹⁵ This controversy served as a primary driver for the subsequent formalization of the board-level ESG Committee.

The Formal ESG Era (2021–2023)

In 2021, CJ ENM declared the official start of "ESG Management," establishing a dedicated ESG Committee under the Board of Directors to elevate sustainability to a strategic boardroom issue.¹⁸ This year marked the publication of the first integrated ESG report for the consolidated entity.⁸

Detailed Framework Adoption and Disclosure Standards

The evolution of CJ ENM's reporting frameworks demonstrates a deliberate shift toward international standardization to satisfy a diverse array of global institutional investors and regulatory bodies.

Global Reporting Initiative (GRI) Standards

Beginning with its 2021 report, CJ ENM adopted the GRI Standards as its primary reporting architecture. The 2023 report, titled "Our ESG Journey," is prepared in accordance with the GRI Standards 2021.⁶ This framework allows the company to disclose its impacts on the environment, society, and the economy in a structured, comparable manner.²¹ By utilizing GRI, CJ ENM addresses broad stakeholder interests, ranging from local communities to international NGOs.²¹

Sustainability Accounting Standards Board (SASB)

To meet the specific information needs of financial stakeholders and investors, the company integrates SASB indicators into its reporting.⁶ Given CJ ENM's industry classification, it focuses on material topics such as data privacy, media ethics, and workforce diversity within the "Movies & Entertainment" and "E-Commerce" standards.²¹ The use of SASB ensures that the disclosed sustainability data is financially material and relevant to the company's long-term valuation.²⁴

Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosures (TCFD)

CJ ENM has recognized climate change as a systemic financial risk, adopting the TCFD recommendations to disclose how it manages climate-related risks and opportunities.⁶ The 2023 report includes a dedicated TCFD index, outlining governance, strategy, risk management, and metrics and targets related to the transition to a low-carbon economy.⁵ This includes the company's commitment to achieving net-zero carbon neutrality by 2050.¹⁹

ISSB and Double Materiality

A significant advancement in the 2023 disclosure cycle was the adoption of the International Sustainability Standards Board (ISSB) standards, specifically IFRS S1 and IFRS S2.⁵ Furthermore, the company conducted a "double materiality" assessment, which considers both the impact of ESG issues on the company's value (financial materiality) and the company's impact on society and the environment (impact materiality).⁶ This holistic approach aligns with the latest developments in global disclosure regulations, such as the European Union's CSRD and the South Korean FSC's upcoming disclosure roadmap.²⁶

Environmental Stewardship: The Planet Pillar

The "Planet" pillar of CJ ENM's ESG strategy is characterized by an ambitious decarbonization roadmap and innovative approaches to sustainable media production.

Net-Zero Roadmap and GHG Inventory

The company has set a target for carbon neutrality by 2050, with a mid-term milestone to invest in infrastructure and eco-friendly management by 2030.¹⁹ In 2023, CJ ENM expanded its greenhouse gas (GHG) inventory to include major subsidiaries and underwent third-party verification of its Scope 1 and Scope 2 emissions to improve transparency.⁵ The 2022 ISO 14001 certification provided the necessary management framework to systematically monitor and reduce the environmental footprint of its physical assets, including the Sangam and Bangbae office buildings and various production studios.⁸

The ECP Initiative and Virtual Production

The media industry is traditionally resource-intensive, particularly in set construction. CJ ENM's "ECP Initiative" (Eco-friendly Content Production), launched in partnership with the Korea Creative Content Agency (KOCCA), addresses this directly.⁵ A primary mechanism for reduction is the use of large-scale "media walls" in virtual production studios. These digital backgrounds eliminate the need for physical sets constructed from timber, plastic, and synthetic materials, thereby significantly reducing physical waste and on-site energy consumption.⁸ The company is also researching a specialized "Carbon Emissions Calculator" for the content industry to quantify the impact of specific productions.⁵

Circular Economy in Commerce

Within the Commerce Division, the focus is on a "virtuous cycle of resources".⁵ This involves adopting eco-friendly packaging materials and optimizing logistics to reduce fuel consumption. In 2023, the company signed resource recycling agreements with international relief agencies, donating surplus assets to create jobs while ensuring materials are reused or recycled rather than sent to landfills.⁵

Social Responsibility and Human Capital: The People Pillar

The "People" pillar emphasizes the protection of human rights, the cultivation of a diverse workforce, and the social impact of the stories the company tells.

Human Rights and Labor Management

CJ ENM has formalized its commitment through the Declaration of Human Rights and the Declaration of Health and Safety.¹⁰ In 2024, a comprehensive Human Rights Impact Assessment was conducted, identifying the need for better working conditions for on-site production staff and expanded flexible work arrangements.⁵ The assessment also highlighted the importance of protective measures for pregnant staff and improved break areas at production sites.⁵ To ensure a safe reporting culture, the company operates the "K-Whistle" system, which provides identity protection and prevents secondary harm to whistleblowers.⁵

Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DE&I)

The global success of "K-content" is increasingly tied to its ability to resonate with diverse audiences. CJ ENM views diversity not as a compliance requirement but as a creative asset.²⁹ The company aims to achieve equal representation in its content and production teams, recognizing that Millennials and Gen Z—the primary consumers of its media—are highly attuned to social values and diversity.²⁹ This focus extends to its workforce, where it strives to foster an inclusive environment that respects diverse lifestyles and thoughts.¹⁹

Supplier Support and Shared Growth

The "Supplier ESG Support Program" is a key component of the company's social strategy.⁵ By helping small and medium-sized partners (SMEs) improve their own ESG management, CJ ENM strengthens the resilience of its entire supply chain. For three consecutive years, the company has participated in programs facilitated by the Korea Commission for Corporate Partnership, providing technical assistance and preferential treatment to SMEs that demonstrate outstanding ESG performance.⁵

Governance and Ethical Integrity: The Business Pillar

The "Business" pillar focuses on rebuilding trust through robust governance structures and a culture of compliance.

Board Oversight and the ESG Committee

The Board of Directors (BOD) serves as the ultimate authority for ESG strategy. The ESG Committee, established in 2021, deliberates on critical issues such as climate change, ethics, privacy, and internal transaction fairness.¹⁹ This committee is supported by an internal "working council" that coordinates ESG activities across different business divisions.¹² The inclusion of independent experts, such as professors of media and communication, ensures that the committee's deliberations are informed by diverse external perspectives.¹⁹

Compliance and Anti-Corruption Measures

Following the ethical lapses identified in 2019, CJ ENM has prioritized the institutionalization of compliance. The attainment of ISO 37301 certification in 2023 for both divisions represents a commitment to maintaining global-standard compliance management systems.⁵ The company has appointed compliance coordinators within each division to ensure that ethical standards are integrated into daily business processes.⁵ Furthermore, the "CJ Global Supply Chain Ethics Policy" declares the company's commitment to transnational laws and regulations, reinforcing its position as a trusted global partner.⁵

Content Ethics and Data Privacy

As a media and commerce giant, CJ ENM handles vast amounts of consumer data and exerts significant cultural influence. The company has established strict policies regarding privacy and data security, which are monitored by the ESG Committee.¹⁹ In its content production, the company strives for "Good Impact," ensuring that its media promotes positive social change and avoids the propagation of harmful stereotypes.⁶ This is particularly relevant in its audition programs, where the implemented "observer system" now serves to guarantee the integrity of fan-voting results.¹⁵

Ratings and Performance Assessments

External assessments provide a vital benchmark for CJ ENM's sustainability journey relative to its peers and global standards.

Domestic Ratings: KCGS

The Korea Institute of Corporate Governance and Sustainability (KCGS) is the primary domestic evaluator for listed Korean firms. CJ ENM has demonstrated consistent improvement in its KCGS ratings, receiving an 'A' grade in 2022 and maintaining it in 2023.⁶ This 'A' rating signifies a high level of ESG management and a robust system for minimizing ESG-related risks.³⁰

International Ratings: MSCI and S&P Global

On the international stage, CJ ENM is monitored by major rating agencies. In 2023, MSCI upgraded the company's rating to 'BBB,' representing a one-notch improvement from the previous year.⁶ This upgrade reflects the company's enhanced disclosure and better management of key ESG issues compared to its global peers. S&P Global, which conducts the Corporate Sustainability Assessment (CSA), gave CJ ENM an ESG score of 48 in late 2024.⁹ This score is based on publicly available information and indicates that the company is outperforming the average for the "Media, Movies & Entertainment" industry, although it still has room for improvement to reach the top decile.⁹

Assurance and Reliability

To ensure the credibility of its disclosures, CJ ENM's ESG reports are subjected to third-party verification. DNV Business Assurance Korea provided assurance for the 2023 report, confirming that the data was properly collated and that the report adhered to the principles of accuracy, completeness, and neutrality.⁶ The financial data within the report is consistent with the consolidated financial statements audited by external accounting firms.⁶

Transparency and Knowledge Limitations

This analysis is based on information available as of March 2026. While the report strives for exhaustiveness, several limitations must be acknowledged.

Access to Real-time and Paywalled Data

Most of the qualitative ESG data is derived from official annual sustainability reports, which are published with a time lag (e.g., the 2023 performance is detailed in the report published in mid-2024). Real-time ESG data for the current year (2025/2026) is primarily limited to market-based indicators such as stock price fluctuations and immediate press releases. Some detailed historical ratings from agencies like Sustainalytics or ISS ESG were not explicitly listed in the provided public snippets and may require a subscription to those specific platforms for a full year-over-year numerical breakdown.⁶

Verification Status of Forward-looking Statements

Claims regarding "Net-Zero by 2050" and the "Good Impact" of future content are forward-looking and thus "Unverified" in terms of realization. These are commitments to a strategic direction rather than historical facts. Furthermore, while the company has addressed the Produce 101 controversy, the long-term effectiveness of its "observer system" in maintaining absolute voting integrity remains a subject of ongoing public and regulatory monitoring.¹⁵

Recommended External Verification Channels

Users seeking to independently verify or monitor CJ ENM's ongoing ESG performance are encouraged to consult the following authoritative databases:

1. CJ ENM Investor Relations (Sustainability Section): The primary repository for all past and present ESG reports and declarations (URL: <https://www.cjenm.com/en/esg/report/>).
2. DART (Data Analysis, Retrieval and Transfer System): The South Korean Financial Supervisory Service's (FSS) repository for all regulatory filings, including corporate governance reports.
3. KCGS ESG Portal: For updated ratings and detailed assessment reports on Korean listed companies (URL: <https://www.cgs.or.kr/eng/>).

Strategic Summary and Future Outlook

The decade from 2014 to 2023 has been transformative for CJ ENM. The entity has transitioned from a collection of subsidiaries with disparate CSR activities to a unified, board-led ESG powerhouse. The structural changes brought about by the 2018 merger created the necessary scale to implement complex environmental and social initiatives, such as virtual production and global human rights due diligence.

The company's response to the 2019 governance crisis was a critical inflection point, leading to the adoption of international compliance standards (ISO 37301) and more transparent stakeholder communication. By aligning its disclosures with GRI 2021, SASB, TCFD, and the emerging ISSB standards, CJ ENM has positioned itself as a transparent and accountable leader in the South Korean media landscape.

Looking forward, the company's primary challenges will involve navigating the transition to mandatory ESG disclosure in South Korea by 2026 and meeting its ambitious 2050 carbon neutrality goals. Its ability to successfully integrate "content diversity" as a core creative strategy will likely determine its continued competitiveness in the global "Hallyu" market. As it moves from "taking ESG steps together" to a more established "ESG journey," CJ ENM's profile suggests a company that is increasingly integrating non-financial value creation into its core business model.
